Sailor Tom Sharkey, when he was training for his battles with Choynski, Fifzsimmons and Jeffries in San Francisco, used to take little jaunts from his quarters to the water front. Frisco's "front" is famous the world over among and on the clossing day the richest sailers. It is, or at least it was a few years ago, the wickedest on the seven stake of the meeting will be raced seas. For blocks the streets are built out over the water on piles. Belmont at Westchester.

Westchester has but three more days, This year the Belmont will be worth and a quarter, over the hill.

In previous years the distance has been one mile and three furlongs. which is exactly one turn of the great Westchester Eclipse. This, however, necessitated a start being made-right on the sharp turn, and horses who had outside positions were at a great disadvantage.

The new distance will enable the horses to start out of the Withers chute, and furnish a long, straight run to the top of the hill, where the single turn will be made before entering on the half-mile run down hill. The race at this distance will be much more satisfactory.

Broomstick started once in a seven-furlong race. He carried no weight to speak of, but he simply tow-roped a good horse in Runnels, and his vic-tory was impressive. The question that must be asked concerning Broom-stick is, whether he can carry stake weight over a distance of ground.

Two-Year-Olds to Meet. The Eclipse, to be run on the same day, brings about a meeting between Glorifler, Augur and Britisher. The distance, five and a half furlongs, gives Britisher a chance to show his real worth, for he is a slow beginner, but a very strong finisher. Glorifler, however, ma a world of speed, and at the contract of the wanter.
